BRENDA AVADIAN, MA, a native Wisconsinite, is the founder of TheCaregiversVoice.com, which brings hope and strength to caregivers for adults with cognitive impairments through knowledge, support, resources and humor. The author of the pioneering family caregiving memoir: "Where's my shoes?" My Father's Walk through Alzheimer's, Brenda has written nine books and serves as a national spokesperson and expert on family caregiving for people with dementia. She earned her degrees from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

PROGRAM
HIGHLIGHTS INCLUDE:

Part 1: The Visit

We have little idea what's ahead when a loved one needs us

Part 2: Can I Survive as a Caregiver?

Help! We can't do it alone. We need help and the Continuum of Care gives us options

Part 3: Making the Best Out of the Most Difficult Decision

Placing a loved one under someone else's full-time care will be successful if we do these things

Part 4: Tying it all Together and Beyond

Nothing is more comforting during our senior years than the confidence that we will be well-cared for.
